Editors Have Interesting Meeting at Poplar Bluff

The Southeast Missouri Press association will hold its next convention at Marble Hill, that place having been elected late yesterday afternoon by the committee, which consisted of the organization's officers. The newspaper men, who spent yesterday in Poplar Bluff, expressed delight over their visit here.

Yesterday's convention was held in the city hall, as told in the Daily Republican. It transacted a deal of business without great ado, had a fine discussion and adjourned in an atmosphere of good fellowship. The complete proceedings of the convenon follow:

President D. B. Hill called the gathering to order, delivering a brief address in which he congratulated the organization upon its interest which was manifested by the excellent attendance. Secretary Harry Naeter read the last meeting's minutes, which were adopted on motion of Fred E. Kies.

R. L. Daniels moved the appointment of a membership committee to receive and examine applications, which carried, and R. L. Daniels and E. P. Caruthers was chosen by the president. On Doc Brydon's motion a recess of ten minutes was taken and twelve new members were accepted by the committee. Chairman Caruthers moved their acceptance by the association when it convened, and this was done. He also moved that all memberships expire July 1, which motion also carried.

Fred E. Kies moved that the annual meeting be held on the first Friday following Thanksgiving day, and this carried. Fred Naeter moved that E. P. Caruthers read his statement regarding prices for commercial printing, and when the motion carried Mr. Caruthers read his lists, after which there was a general discussion.

E. P. Crowe introduced a resolution calling on Congress to revoke the postal law requiring a statement of ownership, etc., of newspapers, and this resolution was adopted at the afternoon session.

A recess was taken for dinner, and a visit to the plant of the Dalton Adding Machine company and the new Elks' home was enjoyed immediately after dinner. A picture of the convention group was taken on the Elks' home steps by photographer W. H. Kennedy.

On reassembling Eli D. Ake, C. C. Mitchum, Fred Naeter, D. B. Hill, J. P. Campbell, D. L. Burnside and others discussed commercial print-prices. Fred Naeter's motion Mr. Caruthers print his list of listed prices and send to each member was carried. E. P. Caruthers moved that the officers of the association select the next place for the annual meeting and it carried.

E. L. Purcell moved that the secretary print membership cards and send to the members, which motion carried, and F. E. Kies moved that the executive committee provide a regular program for the next meeting, which also carried. E. D. Ake moved that the old officers be elected to serve another year and the motion carried. D. B. Hill being retained as president, Doc Brydon as vice president, and Harry Naeter as secretary-treasurer.

L. Purcell announced that R. Daniels was going to Hot Springs because of rheumatism and moved that all members send him their greetings for five weeks. This carried.

Watkins moved that the in-extended by D. L. Burnside the picture show be ac-curred.

Barbary moved that the Club and D. L. Burnside be thanked for their attention civilities shown the con-

Illinois republican standpatters have the right idea. They hold on to olive branches to the progressives, but propose to treat them as part of the "common enemy." This is not the Hadley programme of reabsorption, but it recognizes the cold fact that the progressives are a new party, not just a few disgruntled republicans.—St. Louis Star.
